

which have mostly been enacted by martial law governments, to make them democratic and media-friendly.

The FEC expressed anguish over the growing threats to the lives of the journalists and media workers and continued attempts of forced disappearances and attacks on them across the country and gave an urgent call for an end to total impunity to attackers and criminals.

The FEC also expressed concern at the slow pace of adoption of the federal law — currently lying before the National Assembly Standing Committee on Human Rights — under the title of “Journalist Protection Bill” and called for its urgent and unanimous adoption by both houses of Parliament to safeguard the lives of journalists and to bring criminals to justice.

The FEC welcomed the Sindh government’s enactment of a law on safety of journalists and called for its urgent operationalisation by completing the nominations of members of its implementation commission as soon as possible. It also urged the Balochistan, Khyber Pakhtunkhwa and Punjab governments to fulfill similar obligations and table laws for the protection of journalists and media workers before their respective legislatures.

The FEC took up the issue of retrenchments, non-payment of salaries, delayed payments and cuts in salaries of journalists and workers, and partial implementation of the 8th Wage Board Award by some media houses.—Staff Reporter

Control Authority (PSQCA) through introduction of star rating in electric fans aimed at manufacturing energy-efficient product.

The local fan industry is reluctant to join the list of the PSQCA and has asked the ministry to first ensure the provision of full voltage electricity across the country as well as imposition of the authority standards on the imported raw material.
